Wife Appeals to Police to Protect Spouse From Abductors En Route

Woman Declares She Will "Make H. the Guilty Suffer for All My Misery"

SERKELEY, Feb. 15 .- William Hush, SERKELEY. Feb. 15.—William Hush, son f Valentine Hush, the Fruitvale capitalist, telegraphed this morning from New York, where he was found yesterday after his physterious disappearance two weeks ago, that he had departed for home and would arrive Thursday. This word came to his wife at her home, 1827 Arch street, where she had been well nigh districated until the news reached her of her husband's safety.

Mrs. Hush was so worked up over the situation that she appealed to Chief

Mrs. Hush was so worked up over the situation that she appealed to Chief of Police Vollmer today for help. The woman declared that she feared an attempt would be made to abduct her husband as he neared home to prevent him from rejoining her and their baby.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, DEATHS

Birth, marriage and death notices sent by mail will not be inserted. They must be handed in at either of the publication offices and be indorsed with the name and residence of persons authorized information that her husband met a stranger in Berkeley the morning of February 3, the day he disappeared from home, with whom he was supposed to have gone to New York.

Mrs. Hush said today:

BIRTHS

BOHMAN—In this city, February 14, 1908, to the wife of F. R. Bohman, a son.

BURNS—In this city, February 12, 1908, to

Monday morning of his disappearance Will and this strange man, who is described as being large and heavy set, taiked nearly the whole morning at the corner of Addison street and Shattuck avenue, a few doors from the office of Harold Havens, where Will was a salesman. The two were in earnest conversation, and Will paced up and down the street, worried and in thought. The stranger was evidently trying to persuade him to do something that my husband was averse to doing.

They finally left Berkeley for San Francisco, MADISON—In this city, January 27, 1908, to was averse to doing.

They finally left Berkeley for San Francisco, where they were seen in Van Ness avenue late in the afternoon. But when Will met Paul Toppey at the corner of Sansome and Sutter streets at 4:30 o'clock the strange man was not with him. Will was apparently on his way home at the time, but never reached here, and that was the last trace that I got of him.

Whether my husband was drugged later in the fay by this man and taken to New York I cannot say. He must surely have been drugged, as he loves his home and wife and child and would have given me some word if he had been in his right mind.

In his right mind.

I remembered the warning he often made with an oath. "Whatever you do, Jule, if I should leave suddenly, or drop out of sight, stay where you are: I will come to you, even if weeks, months or years elapse."

I cannot understand why I am persecuted. I have done nothing. Why do they try to take my husband from me? This is the second time that he has been spirited away, but the first time he came back after he had gone to San Jose.

I shall make the guilty suffer for all the misery that they have caused me in taking my husband away, and when Will reaches home the truth shall be known.

Mrs. Hush is thinking seriously of employing a private detective to meet the train in New Mexico or Arizons in order that her husband can arrive safely in this city. At the Valentine Hush residence, where the head of the house is reported seriously ill, an announcement was made that "nothing wash known about the movements of Will liush."

Splendid Success

it was a gay day yesterday for members of the United Irish societies of San Francisco. In the morning, they formed plans, they decorated and made ready in the afternoon and last night they held a bill under the auspices of the Celtic union at Puckett's hall, which was attended by nearly every San Franciscan with a drop of Erin's red blood in his or her veins. The ball itself was a great success, but better yet a neat sum was realized toward the building fund of the proposed Irish hall.

The hall was decorated for the event by volunteers, and the wives and sisters of the members, led by Mrs. James Wrenn, served ice cream and cakes and other light refreshments to the dancers. Early in the evening a band discoursed Irish and American music and its members had scant rest from then until the last tired but happy couples started home.

J. T. Mallott had charge of the floor.

LOOK OVER The above list for a first class place to stop while in the city, or for a permanent location. If you want to know about bonds—why they are absolutely safe—why they are most profitable to investors—why they are safer than stocks and better than mortgages—write or call on the Bond Department of the Ocean Shore Railway Co.

A careful study of investments in this country reveals the undisputed fact that millions are lost annually by busy men and women who lack the training necessary to tell the difference between a good, sound, safe investment and an unscrupulous fraud.

To be absolutely safe you must place your money where its safety is assured. That is the first consideration. You should also invest it in a class of security which can be turned into cash with readiness should occasion arise. You should buy securities which will pay the highest rate of interest consistent with safety, and such securities as promise to increase in market value under normal conditions.

A Woman's Experience

A few years ago the stock of a great corporation was offered to the public at a price remarkably low, considering the fact that dividends were then being paid and rumors of their permanency were being circulated. Here is the actual experience of one investor in that stock: She-for this particular person was a dressmaker in a small town, who had saved a few hundred dollars—did not know what the word stock signified. But she did see, thanks to the "tips" of well-meaning friends, that the purchase of this particular stock meant an income of about 9 per cent.

Therefore, this woman, attracted by an extraordinary income, invested her savings in a mere possibility. The earning capacity of the stock was practically untested. Still she bought in small amounts as it advanced in market price. Suddenly it began to decline, for, as the wise ones knew, its rise had been due to skillful manipulation. The woman, inspired still by well-meaning friends with "tips," continued to buy as the stock went down. When it reached a point at which the income was about 20 per cent on the investment the directors decreed a suspension of dividends for an indefinite period. Immediately the stock fell to something less than 10 per cent on its par value. The poor dressmaker's savings were wiped out. She could not even borrow money, offering her comparatively worthless shares as collateral. No one wanted them.

Should Have Bought Bonds

Had this woman bought the bonds of the same company she would have had an assured income of about 5 per cent per annum and principal unimpaired. She could not watch the markets and buy and sell as speculators do, risking all for great profit or utter ruin. What she needed was safety of principal and peace of mind.

A Safe Investment

A railway bond is the right kind of an investment for a woman, a trustee or any one who cannot give constant and expert attention to their investment.

If you do not want to risk either your money or the income it brings you, you should buy bonds. Stocks are not safe in these timesnot even the standard railroad securities which appear so attractive at present rates. The management of any railroad may deem it best to cut or pass the dividend on its common stock.

Bondholders Independent

But the holders of a mortgage bond are independent of business changes or disasters. Their income is fixed (Ocean Shore bonds at $96 will always, under every condition, pay 5.21 per cent); their money is secured up to its full face value by real and tangible property through a mortgage held in behalf of the bondholders by a responsible Trust company. This property belongs to them and to them only-in case of the company's failure the stockholders lose their money, but the bondholders are pro-

Bonds in $100 Denominations

Most railway bonds are issued in $1,000 denominations and for that reason are beyond the average person's resources, but Ocean Shore bonds are issued in denominations of $100 each and are therefore available for small investors. Ocean Shore bonds of $100 face value are sold to the public at $96, on installments-$16 down and $10 a month. Interest is paid on the installment payments as they are paid in, and at the end of eight months $2.50 interest is allowed the purchaser, practically reducing the cost of the bond to $93.50.

Secured by Mortgage

Ocean Shore bonds are secured by a $5,000,-000 mortgage held in trust for the bondholders by the Mercantile Trust Co. of San Francisco. Attached to each bond is a series of small coupons. Each is good for $2.50 on a certain date. One of these coupons is torn from the bond every May and every November and cashed at any bank. Therefore, you see the interest is paid on a definite date—it is prompt and
